Eric and Jay--

Our July 29 letter about the permit transfer for Highland Mist says only Anasazi Gold Reserves or its agents have approval from the Division of Oil, Gas and Mining to mine the site. It goes on to say, though, that since the Division has not received the permit fee for 2013, no one is authorized to mine, including removal of mined material.

Strictly from the Division's viewpoint this is correct, but I need to point out that the Trust Lands Administration also has interest in this issue. Whoever mines the property must have both a valid lease and mine permit, and at this time no one has both of these.
